Chapter 1 by Rawa

Ever since I was born, I loved pressing buttons. My love for buttons hasn't really helped me with anything... Just got me into a LOT of trouble.

Today, me and my family were going to the airport. We were waiting in line for our ticket until I noticed something... a vending machine. AND it had a LOT of buttons!

Chapter 2 by Madison Shawver

I just had to push them all! I could not help it. I rushed away from my family to press all the buttons. When I returned my family was gone with the plane. I was worried sick and went to one of those desks that help you when your lost. What else could I do? She told me my family had boarded the plane and it was gone. She made it sound like I was one of those people who lives at the airport. I just could not take. She offered me $100 for food and whatever else I needed while I was staying there. She offered to be my temporary mom and I said sure. The first week I spent there was a little scary but I made it through. My parents were supposed to be there for seven weeks.... What do I do?
